Scope:

This letters journal is devoted to the science and technology of materials. Contributions will cover the physics and chemistry of matter - the crystalline, amorphous, synthetic superlattice and ordered liquid forms; characterization, including analytic, microscopic, acoustic, optical and spectroscopic; properties, including mechanical, magnetic, transport, optical, dielectric, interfacial and phase transformational; new materials and novel characterization techniques; theoretical aspects of material behaviour (computer modelling etc.). Applications include optoelectronic, optical, magnetic, shape-memory and structural (composites, refractories, polymers,...) Processing includes crystal growth, including epitaxy and vapour deposition techniques such as MBE, CVD, MOCVD, sputtering etc., beam processing including laser annealing, ion implantation, plasma etching, lithography, etc., synthesis including high pressure, powder preparation, explosive forming, rapid quenching, deformation processing extrusion, hydrostatic and novel techniques.

Aims:

The aim of the journal is to reach and provide a forum for scientists and engineers trained in the traditional disciplines of chemistry, physics, ceramics and metallurgy, now engaged in the interdisciplinary field of the science and technology of materials.

It is hoped that the rapid publication of short papers from the different aspects will stimulate the cross-fertilization of ideas and the further development of the field.

The journal publishes experimental and theoretical papers on all aspects of chemical physics. Experimental papers are brought into relation with theory, and theoretical papers demonstrate their relation to present or future experiments. More specifically, subject matter in the field of spectroscopy and molecular structure, interacting systems, energy relaxation in molecules, fundamental problems in molecular reactivity, molecular quantum theory and statistical mechanics constitute the main areas of interest for this journal.
